[1] Report of the Fourth World Conference on Women, Beijing, 4-15 September 1995 (A/CONF.177/20 and Add.1), chap. I, resolution 1, annexes I and II.

Emphasizing that all forms of violence committed against the civilian population, including women and children in areas of armed conflict, including capturing them as hostages, seriously contravene international humanitarian law, in particular the Geneva Conventions of 12 August 1949 for the protection of victims of war,

Expressing its strong belief that the rapid and unconditional release of women and children taken hostage in areas of armed conflict will promote the implementation of the noble goals enshrined in the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action,

1. Condemns violent acts in contravention of international humanitarian law against civilian women and children in areas of armed conflict, and calls for an effective response to such acts, including the immediate release of such women and children taken hostage;

2. Strongly urges all parties to armed conflicts to respect fully the norms of international humanitarian law in armed conflict and to take all necessary measures for the protection of women and children, as well as for the immediate release of women and children taken hostage;

3. Urges all parties to conflicts to provide unimpeded access to specialized humanitarian assistance for women and children taken hostage in areas of armed conflict;

4. Requests the Secretary-General, and all relevant international organizations to use their capabilities and efforts to facilitate the release of all women and children taken hostage in area of armed conflict and urges all States to use their influence to this end;

5. Requests the Secretary-General to prepare, taking into account the information provided by Member States and relevant international organizations, a report on the implementation of the present resolution, for submission to the Commission on the Status of Women at its forty-second session.
